

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An interface apparatus which inputs information from an external apparatus. When the inputted information is information which was changed within a predetermined time, the information is invalidated. When the inputted information is not matched with a protocol, such information is skipped. Thus, complicated noise components can be removed.